

matter on its dance through time

a film by jana coorevits

hurt is in the smallest of particles living in minor details      out of necessity

molecules, monads, atoms

and the rest of the day to live through

in my body, that angry tissue that tugs tugs tugs

Matter on its dance through time is the result of an ongoing conversation with the desert landscape of Death Valley, California. In an immense landscape, fragility and detail take on meaning: the moon shakes, a stone balances on a rock, a storm sweeps away a mountain range. Movements in the seemingly static landscape obtain increasing significance. Visible frailty opens a field of association to vulnerability in the aftermath of sexual violence.

link to teaser: matter on its dance through time

a film by jana coorevits

in collaboration with

charlotte van den broeck (text)

lydia hannah debeer + jamie maclean (sound) frankie fleming (voice-over)

fred & ferry gallery (production)

duration: 20:02 min.

© 2023

FRED & FERRY
GALLERY ANTWERP

